Parental Pay Policy

I. Purpose

Parental Pay provides compensation to employees for the purpose of caring for or bonding with a child following birth, adoption, and foster placement. Parental Pay is effective for a birth, adoption, or foster care placement event.

II. Eligibility

Employees who work on a Regular “full-time” or Regular “part-time” basis are eligible. For purposes of eligibility, “full-time” basis means the employee has a normal work schedule of at least 40 hours per week or at least 80 hours on a bi-weekly basis. “Part-time” basis means the employee is a non-supervisory employee who is employed to work a minimum of 20 hours but less than 35 hours per week and not on a time, special job completion, or call when needed basis.

Casual employees are not eligible.

III. Reasons for Parental Pay

Parental Pay is applicable for the following reasons:

- The birth of a child, in order to care for that child within the 12-week period following the birth;
- The placement of a child for adoption, in order to care for that child within the 12-week period following the placement; and
- The placement of a child for foster care, in order to care for that child within the 12-week period following the placement.

Paid parental leave is granted for the sole purpose of recovering from childbirth, caring for or bonding with the child, or providing support to the birth mother recovering from childbirth. Surrogate mothers and sperm donors are not eligible for paid parental leave. In addition, paid parental leave is not available for the adoption of a stepchild by a stepparent or similar circumstances, unless otherwise required by federal, state or local law.

IV. Notification and Documentation Requirements

Employees must complete a Parental Pay Request form and may be required to provide documentation that substantiates the reason for Parental Pay, including a Pregnancy Confirmation form and FMLA/Family Leave paperwork, if applicable. The employee must inform Absence Management of the actual event date before Parental Pay is applied.

If the requested paid parental leave is foreseeable, employees must provide the Company with at least 30 days advance notice of the anticipated event date. If 30 days advance notice is not provided, the employee may be required to explain why it was not provided. The Company can deny Parental Pay until at least 30 days after the date the employee provides notice (if the employee fails to give 30 days’ advance notice), where the need for pay and the approximate event date were clearly foreseeable with no reasonable excuse for the delay.

Parental Pay Policy

V. Approval Requirements and Considerations

Parental Pay does not require supervisor approval; however, the employee must complete the required forms and satisfy the eligibility requirements. If it is foreseen that business needs will be adversely affected during the employee's requested time off, the employee's supervisor may require the employee to select different dates for utilization of Parental Pay. The Parental Pay Request form requires the supervisor and local Human Resources to acknowledge the time off requested. Parental Pay will run concurrently with FMLA/Family Leave and comparable state and local laws.

VI. Amount and Duration of Parental Pay

New mothers who have given live birth to a child are eligible for up to eight (8) weeks of Parental Pay per birth. Under the Parental Pay Policy, both disability and bonding related to birth will be covered at 100 percent compensation for up to eight weeks. The eight weeks of Parental Pay commences upon birth and covers any period of physician-directed absences from active employment post-birth (for up to eight weeks) with any remaining balance of Parental Pay (up to four (4) weeks maximum) available for purposes of bonding with the child at any time post-birth, subject to the terms and conditions below regarding timing and usage. In no case will the total amount of Parental Pay exceed eight weeks. Mothers who have given birth to a stillborn are eligible for up to four (4) weeks of Parental Pay per birth to recover from childbirth. If you are receiving benefits under this Parental Pay Policy, you are not eligible for Sick Benefit pay under the legacy Marathon Petroleum Sick Benefit Policy or legacy Andeavor STD Plan Paid Sick Leave Program; there is no duplication of benefits. However, if your disability related to childbirth continues to exist beyond your eight weeks of Parental Pay, you may be eligible for Sick Benefit pay on the date you Parental Pay ends.

All other eligible employees who qualify for Parental Pay are eligible for up to four (4) weeks of Parental Pay per birth, adoption, or foster care placement of a child for purposes of bonding with the child. The Parental Pay will generally commence immediately following the birth, adoption, or placement of the child, however paid parental leave may occur prior to an adoption when deemed necessary to fulfill the legal requirements for an adoption. The birth event is defined as when labor commences.

Paid parental leave must be taken within the first 12 weeks following birth, adoption, or foster care placement. Paid parental leave may be applied all at once or in two separate periods within the 12-week period unless otherwise required by federal, state or local law, however, paid parental leave taken by new mothers beyond the period of recuperation from childbirth to bond with and/or care for the baby cannot exceed four (4) weeks.

Parental Pay is credited toward the calendar year in which the event occurred. Multiple births and multiple adoptions do not increase the amount of Parental Pay.

Parental Pay will be paid through regular payroll cycles and subject to normal authorized and/or required payroll deductions.

Parents who both work for the Company are each eligible for Parental Pay.

If a holiday occurs during the period when Parental Pay is applied, the employee will receive holiday pay and Parental Pay will not be deducted from the Parental Pay quota balance for that day.

Parental Pay Policy

An eligible employee on paid parental leave will generally receive his or her regular base pay determined by regularly scheduled hours of work during such leave. Once the employee's absence has been properly reported and recorded, he or she will receive Parental Pay as part of the regular payroll process.

Parental Pay, when aggregated with payments received from other sources, may not exceed 100% of the employee's base salary.

General increases in wages (such as those provided under union contracts) will be applied to employees receiving Parental Pay just as they are applied to similarly-situated active employees. A salary increase intended to reflect individual performance (for example, a merit increase) will be granted while an employee is on a paid parental leave if there is reasonable certainty that the employee would have been granted a merit increase had he or she not been on paid parental leave. Such an increase will not be deferred until the employee returns from paid parental leave. The increase will be granted at the time that the employee would otherwise be eligible.

Parental Pay benefits end when employment terminates. No payout of unused Parental Pay benefits is available to employees upon separation.

You are not permitted to perform work in any position of employment with another employer while on paid parental leave.
